Al is an athletic young man that enjoys all things sports. He loves to be active and master new talents. He especially enjoys sporting activities like soccer and skateboarding. Al enjoys one on one attention and would like a positive male role model in his life.

Al would benefit from a family that is patient and knowledgeable about how trauma and grief and loss impact youth. The family should have interest in being proactive with education and able to have open communication with the school system. The family needs to be willing to engage in support services for the Al. Al would do best in an active family that would be able to provide appropriate supervision. Al would prefer a structured two parent home. He will need to maintain ongoing contact with his sister.
